

Sabbeth Opens Law Office At Lincoln Corners Way

After practicing six years with Shillen, Mackall & Sabbeth Law Office in Woodstock, Attorney Michael J. Sabbeth recently opened Sabbeth Law at 43 Lincoln Corners Way. The new office is a personal injury law firm that specializes in worker's compensation and personal injury cases.

"Having six good years with the Shillen, Mackall & Sabbeth firm and still being relatively young, my wife and I thought now is the perfect opportunity for me to break out on my own," said Sabbeth. Crystal Honkala, Sabbeth's legal assistant from his former office joined him in his new venture. "We are a perfect fit," said Sabbeth. "Crystal's competence is a great help, especially during the complexities of opening a new business."

Sabbeth graduated from Brooklyn College, (B.A., Magna Cum Laude, with honors in political science); Vermont Law School, (Juris Doctor, member of Trial Advocacy Moot Court Team, 2008 (only second year student selected to compete), 2009 (chairman). He is a member of the Vermont and New Hampshire bars; and a member of the Golden Key International Honours Society.

Vermont wasn't in the vocabulary of the NYC-born-and-raised Sabbeth, until he discovered Vermont Law School. "It was culture shock in a positive way," he said. "It's an ideal way of life, the people are great, it takes me five minutes to drive to work and casual attire is the norm."

Mike and his wife Eliza live in West Hartford where they share space with their three cats and a dog. The couple enjoys snowboarding at several nearby ski resorts.
